ABSTRACT

A method of compiling code that includes partitioning instructions in the code among a plurality of processors based on memory access latency associated with the instructions is disclosed. According to one aspect of the invention, partitioning instructions includes partitioning memory access dependence chains. Other embodiments are described and claimed.